D, sunny Southern land I to-day I feel
The first fair, flushes of thy balmy breath.
And o'er a weary heart even now begins to steal
A hope like that which claimed, for life and death,
The love of one who watches day by day
And litts her prayers for him so far away.

O, sunny Southern land! and while I rove,
Shall the warm fervor of thy we earning
Wrap me and hold me like that trusting love
Which has not sloy; since its awakening?
O take the trust! atill but thy sun to shine
Upon the wanderer in this land of thine. J. T. D. Smyser's Hotel, Aiken. S. C.

A LADY KILLED BY HER LOVER-FATAL DUEL.

The steamer Richmond, which passed up from New Orleans yesterday, learned at Grand Gulf the particulars of one of those tragedies of passion that appear more like romane than reality. In the country some distance from Grand Gulf reside two especiable families, those of Cushing and Andrews. Miss Andrews was a lovely girl of seventeen, well accomplished, and of unusually fascinating manners. Mr. Cushing's son, a youth of twenty. Consignees per South Catolina Railroad compushed, and of unusually ascending man-ners. Mr. Cushing's son, a youth of twenty, had been attached to her from their early childbootl, and as he grew older his affection became an ardent, absorbing passion. A short time ago he made a formal offer of his hand, April 14.

He brooded over his ill-rewarded passion, and became a very to jealousy, and at length left the neighbowed, wowing madly that he would come back and take his revenge. On Sunday last he returned, and, riding up to Mr. Andrews' house, he beeged to see Miss Andrews at the door, without alighting. She came cut, when he suddenly produced a piscol, fired, shooting her through the body, and she fell on her face and died without a struggle. The infatuated murderer rode frantically away, but Miss Andrews' brother, breathing fury towards the murderer of his sister, sprang on a horse and followed. He came up with Cushing as the latter was crossing a creek, and April 14.

Analysis of Rhodes' Standard Superphosphate of Lime. Soluble Phosphoric acid......9.06 Common Phosphoric Acid......16.08 Equal to Bone Phosphate......84.99 Total Phosphates......54.77 Sulphate of Lime and other Salts not estimated......40.18

The above analysis indicates a Manurial Superphosphate of Lime of the highest grade ordinarily found in the American marker. Its large amount of Soluble Phosphoric Acid supplies an active nutriment for the development and maturity of the fruitage. The Sulphuric Acid which it contains, by chemical affinity with the elements of most soils contribute to its Fertilizing Properties. To show its best effects, this Superphosphate should be applied under and in contact with the Seed, and with a moderately shallow covering of soil.

Ecrofulous poison is one of the most de tructive enemies of our race. Often this unseens a unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the con titution, and invites the atack of enfeebling or stall diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection to rough the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its bideous forms, either of the surface or among the vitals. In the lattor, inbereles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eru trons on the skin, or foul ulcerations on soc e part of the body.
